

Curtiss-Wright “Continuum” Partners Program

The Curtiss-Wright Continuum Partner Program is a product and service collaboration between Curtiss-Wright and complementary product or technology providers. Its aim is to provide our customers a total solution that reduces Time-To-Market while delivering the best value possible. We do this by collaborating with industry-leading product vendors and technology providers to offer customers complete, integrated solutions to their system development challenges as well as unique insights into technology trends that they require for planning their future products.

Strategic Alliance Partners

Our Strategic Alliance Partners works intimately with Curtiss-Wright to align technology and product road maps and pro-actively execute joint marketing and sales programs. We conduct ongoing joint strategic planning and joint product R&D to achieve compatibility and interoperability for a complete tested solution for our target markets.

Technology Partners

Curtiss-Wright and Technology Partners provide industry collaboration and reactive joint marketing and sales programs. These partners complement and enhance both companies’ capabilities and offer better solutions to the market. The partner products are tested and supported by one or both companies.

Associations

An Association Partner is an industry partnership between Curtiss-Wright and those leading standards bodies and organizations that are developing the standards and technologies that will be important to the future requirements of Curtiss-Wright customers.
